CONTEMPORARY ART AT THE NEW FRONTIER

WWW.BOXOPROJECTS.COM
BoxoPROJECTS is dedicated to exploring contemporary art at the new frontier. While frontier may conjure a geographic image, it is actually a spirit that lives in many places simultaneously. BoxoPROJECTS collaborates with artists through BoxoHOUSE, a residency program located in Joshua Tree, California, and BoxoOFFICE an exhibition program located in New York City.

BoxoHOUSE is a research outpost for the investigation and development of ideas related to place, community and the environment. The residency is designed to create an inspirational clearing outside of one’s everyday context and to provide access to a site of uncommon natural beauty and a welcoming community of artists and experts. The residencies at BoxoHOUSE last from one to four weeks. Accommodations, studio space, meals and a modest stipend are provided.

Resident artists engage with the community and the site such that there is an exchange that leaves lasting results and continuing threads. BoxoPROJECTS is integrated into the local arts, social, economic and grassroots political arenas in Joshua Tree. Resident artists are exposed to local issues through attending community events, engaging with local subject experts and open houses held at BoxoHOUSE. A key goal of the residency and associated programming is to contribute to Joshua Tree’s development as a hub of artistic endeavor and demonstrate the power of art to shape a community.

BoxoOFFICE was established in 2009 as a site for experiencing contemporary work by artists working in ways that are removed from the mainstay of the New York art scene. Artworks are presented in a non-traditional space that demonstrates how art can be integrated into one's personal space and everyday life. All artists who undertake the residency are provided an opportunity to exhibit work inspired by their time in Joshua Tree at BoxoOFFICE.
